Garth,

I'm still waiting!

Auntie J. may not be here much longer.

I'm exercised to go and see him to see whether the Lord is taking up his case

It'd be good to be able to go with a sense of your blessing

Garth,

Thank you for telling me about your visit to see the Aunties.

Our conversation seemed to deteriorate on Saturday when you indicated that I was not humble enough to serve David Glover. I'm sure that I need to be more humble and my respect for my local brethren remains intact.

Can I just say, in all sincerity, that I feel, not only humbled, but humiliated that you've felt the need to administer 2 assembly rebukes on me. Can I say, yet again, that I ACCEPT THAT! Not only that, but I restate what I declared to Chris Stutterheim, that I am no better than Andy Beaumont, Oliver Cracknell and even Faye (before she had medication) - but she's such a lovely girl so it's hardly fair to lump her in with the 3 of us. I'm even prepared to take the place of a dog. Please treat me as genuine.

You seemed so sure that the reason I wouldn't see you again means that I'm not humble. That's illogical. I've explained that it's the psychological aspect of having 3 judges and no advocates that needs some understanding.

Last time, the two that I hoped would be my advocates turned with you, against me. The time before, one who'd been advocating for me turned right around and said that I'd told him lies! I have to accept what happens locally despite it being totally out of my control.

I've come to it that there is nothing gained through stating my case. I need to be more like our Lord who bore all ills without complaint. He's my model. I accept this last 2 years as all being part of the Lord's ways for me. Whilst I accept that I must not do anything to help administratively, I do plead for an ear on David Glover.

Auntie Janet is still with us and pleading for David. I submit that she needs to be listened to.

Could you support me in me in my conviction that a fresh approach could work? It'll only work if one takes the line that one is worse than him and could also have done worse. I'm prepared to do that.

Whilst I accept your instruction that I must not get involved in administrative matters, I'd like to visit David myself and if he seems to be listening I'd then take one of the following brothers, or both, who I know, have his good at heart:

- Donald Baltrop (Sheffield)
- Peter Smith (Stamford)

If the Lord seems to be taking up his case, we'll report to Worcester and then, and only then, should it go to the top! But, Garth, you are so powerful that one negative word from you to one person could upskittle this whole exercise. I need a little brotherly confidence this time, please. Could you keep out of it and I'll inform you of progress? David was SO KIND to mother when we weren't kind enough. Oliver Smaldon was no comfort to her.

So, I'm pleading to you in the same way that Auntie Janet pleads to me. David needs an advocate.

I've faith that the work of God in him will come true. I'm convinced that he's no threat. It would be easy to be prejudiced in view of the label on him so I believe it needs a disposition of compassion, kindness and understanding and also significant sensitivity.

All a learning curve for me, but I'll seek the grace to move forward suitably in the matter.

I look forward to hearing back and trust that you will join me in my exercise.
